Love may be the most misunderstood word in the English language. That in concept it is a conundrum is just as equally misunderstood. Who do we love? And then the questions, who, why, when, how? Did I love you when we married? Then why are we divorced now? Do I love my country? Or hot fudge sundaes? Are there degrees of love. Remember the Greeks had philia, brotherly love, eros, erotic love and agape, love in a general and complete sense. In today's world we often end conversations with "love ya". Does it have true meaning? This book examines the many aspects of love. Think of how you love and answer the questions, why, when and how.
