Please don't set your sons up for failure by depriving them of a very necessary God-given tool for their development—a loving, instructive relationship with their father.

The most irresponsible act being committed today is fathering a child and then refusing to raise that child. The community suffers, but more importantly, the child suffers.

These boys, if not challenged by a man in the home, learn to manipulate their mothers. And consequently, as teenagers they become more skilled at relating to teenage girls using manipulative and scheming tactics to seduce them.

Let's say your daughter marries a man who has no respect for authority, isn't well educated, is not very responsible, and lacks discipline. Odds are better than average that the union will end in divorce, leaving her to raise your grandchildren without a father. And the cycle continues. As the number of broken marriages and single parents continues to rise, high school dropouts, incarceration, and death will become plague-like. We have to break the cycle!
