Nova Scotia Runner (Nova Scotia Series) (Volume 1) Dr. Sheila Rae Munoz

Set in the 1700s, a young woman flees her home in wild Nova Scotia, running away from everything she knows and is, to find herself, months later, in the state of Georgia during its infancy. What mysterious secrets does she harbor that are pushing her headlong into grave danger and tragedy?

As her journey unfolds, she decides she must search for her infant daughter, kidnapped by privateers in Nova Scotia before her departure and taken to who knows where? Will she be found by those from whom she is running before she can even begin her search?

The woman's habit of running from conflict steers her right into what she is most trying to avoid: the hands of dangerous privateers, as well. Tormented, abused, and chained, she all but loses hope. What will she find as she continues to run? More than she ever bargained for . . . for, you see, it is a thin line, indeed, that separates running FROM something and running TO something.

Subjects include: Liverpool Nova Scotia, ship battle, ship wreck, privateers, indentured servant, aristocrat, whipping, branding, orphans, bluenose, fantasy, Ebenezer Georgia
